Registering for Courses

Once you have selected your course(s), you have officially initiated the registration process. Although you are NOT enrolled just yet -- your part is done.

Cascadia requires instructor and parental approval before submitting the registration to the college. After the instructor approves the course, your parent or guardian will receive an email notification requesting consent and payment. You can return to the Status screen at any time to check on the progress of your registration.

Once all the steps are complete, and you have successfully been enrolled in the class, you will receive another email notification and your status will read Complete.

The course finder shows you which Cascadia courses are being offered for your school. Use any of the filtering options on the left to narrow down your search. The BY KEYWORD filter is useful to look for courses by title; you can search by any part of the course title.

Click on the title link to select a course. The system will display detailed information about the course including the sections offered. When you've made your decision, click the Register button next to the desired section. This will finalize the selection process. You can return to the Courses tab to select another course as needed.

If you want to think about a course, you can click the Save Course button and come back to it later. NOTE: Saving a course does NOT result in a registration. You must click REGISTER to begin registration for a course.

If you select a course or section by mistake, you can go to the status screen and use the [abandon] option to cancel the course/section.

That's it! Otherwise, your registration is now being processed.
