Hello! Message from the President

There's an excitement when it comes to working on a college campus. New students arrive each year starting their academic journey. They eventually graduate surrounded by thousands of supportive family members.

Cascadia gives access and opportunity to students every day who might not otherwise have this path. We invite some to campus through orientation and tours. Others come to us through special events, like our annual Students of Color Conferences that draw in more than 600 students. Others may start at our new Redmond classroom located in Redmond's Together Center.

Once at Cascadia, many join the Cascadia Scholars mentorship program which provides support and encouragement to reach graduation. They participate in student life, get tutoring, interact with University of Washington Bothell students in joint academic buildings like Innovation Hall (our new STEM building), and learn that Cascadia means a bright future.

We do this well, our students succeed, and it takes an entire community. This is Cascadia.

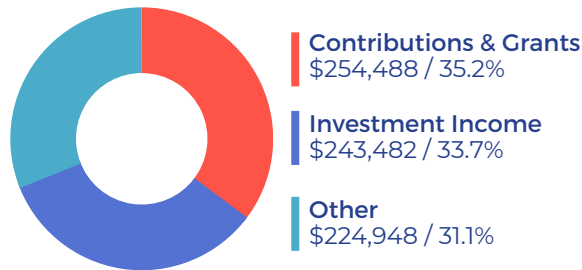

Dr. Eric Murray
Cascadia College
President

With the support of our community, we will continue to transform lives and create opportunities for our students by increasing access to education!

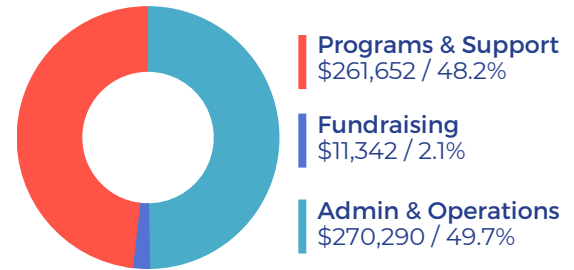

Thank you!
