February 13, 2019

Dear Board of Trustees and Campus Community:

We haven’t had a snow year like this in quite some time. As you read in the Friday Letter, our process for closing the campus is not taken lightly and we know it causes disruption. However, everyone’s safety is of the utmost importance and we know that as a large institution, keeping thousands of drivers off the road will probably save lives.

The month was busy with legislative lobbying. I spent a total of 7 days in Olympia since we last met. I also visited 3 city councils to deliver State of the College addresses. It’s been a good round of making sure our stakeholders are supporting us.

For 2019, I think our largest efforts will be around ctcLink, good financial planning, and equity & inclusion work. That’s not to say we don’t have dozens of other projects; these are the “big three” that will need a lot of my attention. In the packet this month you’ll find my updated 2019 work plan as we discussed at the last meeting for your information.

I look forward to seeing you next week!

Human Resources
Collaborating closely with Student Learning, HR is supporting the hiring processes for Full Time Tenure-Track Faculty in both Math and Business & Information Technology (BIT). Also, we are happy to welcome Misty Anne Winzenried as our new Interim Dean as we prepare to do a full national search for a permanent replacement in the Academic Transfer program.

HR and Payroll processed the 2019 Minimum Wage Increase for employees. The employees impacted were part time hourly and students making under $12.00 in the following areas: International Programs, The Bock Learning Center and Student Success Services.

John Eklof, Executive Director of Equity & Inclusion (EDEI)

We are delighted to announce that John Eklof joined our college on January 18th as the new EDEI. His first few days were spent getting orientated and, on February 5, meeting for the first time with the Equity & Inclusion Council. It is part of the President’s expectation that John will schedule time with each employee…probably in small groups…to get to know them and our campus.

John comes to us from the Bellevue School District where he has worked for the last 3 years as a Racial Equity Specialist. Besides being a motivational speaker, he also spent 4 years with South Seattle College as their Cultural Center Coordinator. He comes to us with two degrees from UW Seattle, a bachelor’s in American Ethnic Studies and a Master’s in Multicultural Education. His experience in helping to professionally develop the faculty of the Bellevue School District, in working with student High School-to-College programs, and in broadening people’s understanding of equity and inclusion work are hallmarks of his career to date. Please join us in welcoming John to our Cascadia family.

Dr. Misty Anne Winzenried, Interim Dean for Student Learning

We are delighted to announce that Dr. Misty Anne Winzenried joined our college on January 28th as the Interim Dean for Student Learning (Transfer/Gen Ed). Misty Anne is coming to us from the UW and will start to transition to Cascadia with a light schedule on campus. She will then begin a full schedule on February 4th.

Misty Anne Winzenried earned her MA in Counseling from The Seattle School of Theology and Psychology and her PhD in Education from the University of Washington-Seattle. With fifteen years of experience teaching in higher education, Misty Anne has taught a wide range of writing, research, education, and psychology courses, often with an interdisciplinary focus. She comes to Cascadia from the Odegaard Writing & Research Center at UW-Seattle, where she directed the tutoring program for three years. Misty Anne’s passion is supporting ongoing faculty development around teaching excellence and equitable teaching practices; she studies the teaching and learning of writing in the academic disciplines and has published scholarship in Across the Disciplines and Composition Forum. Outside of work, she can be found climbing mountains throughout the Pacific Northwest, cooking vegetarian meals, squeezing in a yoga class (which is not at all how one is supposed to practice yoga), and learning the rules of football from her first grader. Please join us in welcoming Dr. Winzenried to our Cascadia family.

RE: Sabbatical Proposal for Winter 2020

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing to request a one-quarter sabbatical for winter of 2020. Below, I summarize my plan for said quarter. After the summary, I respond to the four criteria that determine approval for sabbatical leave, as found in the CCFT CBA 15.23.14.

I plan to use winter quarter to review, revise, and redesign the assignments in my upper-level English as a Second Language (ESL) reading and writing course in our Basic Education for Adults (BEdA) program. This course has been the most challenging of my courses to teach, and although I believe I have helped students’ English progression with this course, I am confident that I can further improve it for future quarters. I would like to use the redesign of this course to implement the Transparency in Learning and Teaching (TILT) framework as well as recent Accessibility strategies. Making headway in this course with TILT and Accessibility will help me better revise and improve my other ESL classes.

15.23.14 Criteria for Selection. The Chief Academic Officer or designee shall use four (4) criteria for selection of academic employees to receive sabbaticals:

15.23.14.01 the merit of the sabbatical project in relation to the applicant’s professional development plans,

A one-quarter sabbatical will better provide me the time and freedom to pursue how to help our BEdA ESL students better through a redesigned course, incorporating recent professional development in TILT and Accessibility. I have engaged in a number of professional development activities focused on digital literacy for English language learners, and TILT and Accessibility would help further my efforts to better support the progression and success of my students.

15.23.14.02 the applicant’s current and previous contributions to the college community,

I have served as Cascadia’s lone full-time faculty for the ESL side of our BEdA program for the last decade. I have served as director of the Teaching and Learning Academy Steering Committee. I have provided leadership for my fellow faculty in our BEdA program, including leading professional development for Washington State Adult Learning Standards and the College and Career Readiness Outcomes. I have revised COGs for our ESL classes. I have implemented Project I-DEA through a Gates Grant, which provided students with laptops for a flipped, hybrid, 18-credit, intensive ESL class. I currently serve on Faculty Council.

15.23.14.03 the proposal's relevancy to the College's academic plan, and

Two themes of Cascadia College's strategic plan are "Access" and "Assessment of Student Success." This sabbatical work will better help student access through the Accessibility strategies incorporated into my revised class. The TILT framework helps level the playing field for students who do not come from an academic background, which would greatly benefit my students, who are diverse not only in their various cultures and native languages, but also diverse in their range of academic experience.

The revised activities and assignments I will create will foster the assessment of student success in this class as well as promote academic readiness. This will prepare my students to transition to higher-level classes, such as Adult Basic Education, Developmental Math and English, and beyond to college-level classes.

15.23.14.04 whether or not the applicant has had a previous sabbatical. In instances where these criteria are equal, seniority shall be the determining factor.

I earned tenure in April of 2011, I have taught 19 quarters (not including summer) since then, and this – if approved – would be my first sabbatical leave.

Thank you for your consideration of my proposal for sabbatical for winter quarter of 2020.

Sincerely,

David E. Dorratcague

Sabbatical Proposal: Using multimedia to Improve Science Communication

Merit of Project to Professional Development

Since the very beginning of my teaching career, I have been interested in the field of science communication. Strictly speaking, science communication refers to communication of science related topics to public. This very broad definition could very well include what we do as community college instructors and is especially relevant in community college science courses. We do, most of the time, communicate with non-experts. Expanded, this definition encompasses the use of specific skills, media, guided learning activities, dialogue that all result in an increased awareness, understanding and interest in the topic. For me it is obvious that the relatively new field of science communication is closely related to teaching, especially for those of us who are practitioners of active learning.

In my teaching career, I have always been drawn to use of technology. As a young instructor, my focus was on improving my classroom presence and active learning techniques but as I have gotten more proficient with those, I have turned my creative energy into developing online learning opportunities for students. Even though I teach face-to-face courses, I have received great feedback from students regarding our course online content they could access at their own time. Since our classroom time is limited, I have explored several ways to extend the guidance through the learning process for students, even when they were not physically present in the classroom. My students were provided with class specific accessible lecture recordings, as well as video recordings of guided solutions to our in class activities and more difficult practice problems. In addition, I have provided my students with thoroughly vetted online content specifically catered to meeting our learning outcomes. I have significantly increased my online presence even while teaching exclusively face-to-face courses.

Over the years, technology has occupied increasing space in students’ lives. With development of new software and apps their lives have become more technology dependent. My goal was always to use students’ proficiency with technology and work with them to focus it more on topics that matter for our course learning and career success. In my classroom, I encourage technology use and challenge students to discover creative ways to use simple apps they already use (such as snapchat, Instagram, Facebook) to improve their engagement with course material. Over the years, I have been able to explore apps and websites and have learned how to use numerous software tools to improve my teaching. I have mastered several video editing, captioning and presentation tools and many anatomy, physiology, and biology related apps, however, I would like an opportunity to focus more intentionally on specific software and technologies I believe would be most useful to my students.

My sabbatical will be a learning experience in using different tools to improve online content of my courses. I am specifically interested in learning to use Adobe Captivate software. I have purchased the software with my PD funds and would love an opportunity to take an Adobe Captivate course and to begin to effectively use the software to create learning activities for my students.

The outcomes of my sabbatical would be:
1. Learn to use and optimize Adobe Captivate, gain creative inspiration to improve the content of my courses with a goal in increasing multimedia use in my teaching.
2. Create new course materials and convert number of PowerPoint Presentations into rapid eLearning tools in my Anatomy, Physiology and Biology related courses.

3. Use Adobe Captivate to integrate visual media into my lectures

Current and Previous Contributions to College Community
I am one of the two tenured Biology faculty and have been the faculty lead for Anatomy and Physiology courses (Biol&241 & Biol&242), Majors Biology (Biol&211) and Microbiology (Biol&260). I am currently working on developing materials for a master Nutrition course. Since earning my tenured status I have redesigned our Anatomy and Physiology sequence (from Anatomy and Physiology being taught separately with three meetings per week, to a more integrated model of Anatomy and Physiology 1 & 2 with labs meeting twice a week). I have completely redesigned our Microbiology course and written all the labs as well as created Master courses in Canvas for Biol&211, Biol&241, Biol&242 & Biol&260.

In addition to activities directly related to Biology, my most significant contribution to Cascadia has been as Director of Teaching and Learning Academy (Sept 2016-March 2018). During my tenure, among other things, I have collaborate with 5-Star Consortium colleges to create and enrich shared resources for faculty professional development; I organized 5-Star new faculty orientation (Cascadia was hosting in Spring 2017), created a 5-Star New Associate Faculty Canvas site used by all our partner schools, created a TLA website & Cascadia Teaching Corner (our teaching blog). In addition to the above mentioned, here is the list of the major non-teaching activities I was involved in since earning my tenure status:

Relevancy to Academic Plan

My proposal is relevant to the college’s academic plan in the following areas:

- Access: by improving my online presence I would be able to work on increasing off-campus, online, and time-shifted scheduling to increase options for our students

- Extending Academic Support for Students: I would be implementing more of high impact instructional technology into my course content

- Enhancing and Expanding STEM Education: the use of new technologies and the newly generated course content will improve our ability to reach a larger student population interested in STEM and will improve quality of teaching in online and face-to-face STEM courses.

Provide a budget rationale (Please briefly explain the proposed budget)

The overall focus of the one quarter sabbatical is to learn more about current faculty resources available at national museums in Washington D.C. The funds for the sabbatical will cover air fare, lodging, transportation, and various fees for admission to museums in the greater Washington D.C. metro region. The funds will allow me to visit at least two museums a day for my five day visit to the nation’s capital. Funds will also cover the use of public transportation to move throughout the metro area reducing my carbon footprint within the greater metro region.

Provide details of any other sources (if any) of financial support (e.g. Fulbright)

NA

Provide a brief explanation of the sabbatical activities that will these funds support?

My sabbatical will involve travel to National Museums in Washington D.C. to learn more about historical, cultural, and human rights issues by visiting the following museums:

Washington D.C.

The United States Historical Holocaust Museum

Newseum

National Museum of the American Indian

African American Museum of History and Culture

Library of Congress

National Museum of American History

I have used the various web sites associated with each museum in most of my courses. I believe visiting each museum in person and interviewing various curators, researchers, and specialists will allow me to integrate more accurately information and perspectives articulated by each site and source. I will focus each museum visit on a specific course I teach for Cascadia College.

CMST 203 (U.S. Media): I plan to visit the “Newseum” in Washington D.C. to gather additional information about media history and media issues impacting our society today. I am interested in learning more about media literacy. The Newseum’s educational resources include various programs covering, “Understanding the First Amendment,” “Finding Reliable Facts,” and “Making Historical Connections.”

HUM 150 (Cultural Studies): I plan to visit “The United States Historical Holocaust Museum,” the “National Museum of the American Indian,” the “African American Museum of History and Culture,” and the "National Museum of American History." Visiting and engaging with the information presented at these museums will allow me to update and expand my knowledge about cultural groups and historical events that influenced and shaped our country. The African American Museum of History and Culture displays several exhibits featuring "slavery" and "freedom." I plan to study and examine these exhibits for more in-depth coverage of slavery during the early 1800s to the present.

Visiting the Library of Congress will benefit all my courses. The opportunity to visit the Library of Congress will allow me to assist my students in their research efforts, including examining and applying both media resources (e.g. audio recordings of historical figures) and reference materials, including primary documents. The Library of Congress offers professional development opportunities for educators, including webinars and summer institutes to enhance faculty research and proficiency in the classroom.

In order to avail myself of the opportunities for study, scholarly activities, and creative activities that a sabbatical makes possible I would like to propose that I do one of two things. The first option would be for me to do a Return To Industry in which I work at a software-based company. The second option would be for me to comprehensively review, summarize, and apply advances in Computer Science education (both formal and informal) that have been published over the years and either rewrite or setting up a rewrite of our Computer Science curriculum. Both options build on and support my Professional Development plan, are in congruence with the College’s values, and support the Strategic Plan for the College.

I’ll discuss the Return To Industry (RTI) first. Even though I have contacts at several companies in the area, including Google and Code.org, the fact that the industry’s hiring cycle is so far removed from ours means that there are fewer certainties about it. Indeed, it’s possible that this option might not work out at all (in which case I’ll go with the second option, below). For this option, the benefits to the College include: updating my technical and soft skills, developing a better understanding of the local software industry (knowing which companies exist, what they do, what they’re like, etc), building my connections to these companies (which, in turn, can help our students get jobs), acquiring more prestige for the college (Cascadia will have a teacher who’s worked at Company X), developing my job search skills (which would improve my skill at teaching our ProTech job-search class, BIT 105: Careers in Information Technology), and acquiring more relevance in the eyes of the students. An RTI would directly contribute to our values of collaboration, access, success, innovation, and will enhance our attainment of many aspects of our Strategic Plan, including the assessment of student success (by ensuring that what we’re teaching is relevant to industry), maintaining high levels of student engagement, student access (both to bachelor's degree and to local industry), and creating a learning-centered environment by enhancing and expanding STEM education. Further, I have consulted with my Dean (Dr. Erik Tinglestad) and if I’m successful in finding an Industry Based Professional Development Experience then the College can request up to $15,000 towards the cost of my salary and benefits through the Perkins Leadership Block program (Erik or I can provide more details upon request).

The second option would be to review, mentally process, and summarize the substantial body of research and best practices that are now available in order to apply those changes to the Computer Pathway / course sequence at Cascadia. The Computer Science course sequence of BIT 115 → BIT 116 → BIT 142 → BIT 143 → BIT 265 would benefit from a substantial, ‘end-to-end’ revision, and I’m at a point in my career where I’m well positioned to enact ‘big picture’ changes to the entire sequence. Such a revision may entail fully redeveloping entire courses and/or developing a list of individual examples and/or ‘model lessons’ to use as templates during the quarter that the revised courses are delivered.
Further, since I started teaching a new field of research has emerged – “Computer Science Education Research”, which specifically looks at how to best teach Computer Science. This research encompasses everything from best practices for teaching foundational Computer Science topics to strategies that specifically address topics like diversity, equity and inclusion (which I’m particularly eager to examine) in a field that’s traditionally had problems in those areas. There’s now a body of research around effective online instruction which didn’t exist even a short while ago. Indeed, the field has matured to the point where ‘research’ includes not just individual papers but also entire books dedicated to improving Computer Science education.

Some topics for investigation might include (but are not limited to) POGIL (Process-Oriented Guided Inquiry Learning), using statistics / analytics in my classes to better assess student success, locating and incorporating OER (Open Educational Resources) materials into classes, participating in (and assessing the feasibility of student participation in) open source projects, the use of a graphical and/or mobile app-based programming environment (such as ApInventor) for BIT 115 (Introduction To Programming), best practices for managing the workload specific to teaching online courses (for example, finding and/or preparing suitable videos for online classes can be very time-consuming), making Computer Science more accessible to students with disabilities, and helping students learn how to use git (a popular version-control program used by professionals to develop software).

As part of researching best practices I’d like to talk to other Computer Science instructors in the area, both to gather tips and techniques from them, and to build a network of connections in the region. This will help our students by streamlining access to bachelor’s degree attainment.

This option for my sabbatical is in alignment with Cascadia’s values and Strategic Plan. It supports diversity, equity and inclusion (which are areas that I’m particularly interested in developing myself, professionally), collaboration, access, success, innovation, responsiveness, and creativity. It supports student access (by streamlining access to bachelor’s degree attainment and to industry job placement), a learning-centered environment (by enhancing and expanding STEM education and by improving faculty and staff support)(there’s never enough time to do this research & revision while doing day-to-day operations of the college), the assessment of student success (by maintaining high levels of student engagement, by promoting high levels of "academic challenge", strengthening students' success, and ensuring student learning), as well as institutional sustainability (by supporting employees).

Cascadia College Board of Trustees

Discussion/Presentation Items

Subject: New Trustees Recommendations

Background
After 10 years of service, Dr. Julie Miller will be stepping down from the Cascadia Board of Trustees, requiring a replacement trustee.

Also, after 5 years of service, Ms. Nancee Hofmeister will no longer be able to serve on the Board, necessitating the assignment of a second new trustee.

Attached is a summary sheet of information on possible new trustee candidates.

Dr. Miller and President Murray will discuss the candidates with the trustees and together they will come to a decision on which two candidates will be nominated and recommended to the Governor’s office as new trustees for the Cascadia College Board of Trustees.

President Murray and Board Chair Dr. Miller will be available to answer any questions the Board may have on this item.

Subject: Strategic Plan Deep Dive: Student Success: Reducing the Transitional Pipeline

Background

The attached PowerPoint presentation being presented to the Board is a collaboration of the Office of Institutional Research, Math, English, Enrollment Services and Transitional Studies.

Dr. Kerry Levett will be available to answer any questions the Board may have on this item.
Student Success: Reducing the Transitional Pipeline

A Collaboration of the Office of Institutional Research, Math, English, Enrollment Services and Transitional Studies
Why this matters to students

• Fulfill our mission of open access
• Shorter time to goal completion
  • Access the job market quicker
  • Start at transfer destination quicker
  • Spend less
• Able to focus on their academic path and core education

| 2012 | Northshore Transcript Placement
• This was the beginning of Cascadia using high school transcripts for math placement. We started with Northshore SD, since it was our largest feeder district, and we were working with them on a number of math initiatives tied to transition.
5 Star Consortium standardizes placement cut scores |
| 2013 | Placement Reciprocity
Created math tracks: Calc and non-calc track, |
| 2015 | Smarter Balanced Assessment results used for math and English placement
WAMAP for students who want to challenge initial placement |
| 2016 | Math placement via High School transcript expanded to all schools
• Students typically place higher when high school transcripts are used rather than when we rely on standardized tests such as Accuplacer.

| 2017 | Implemented Guided Self Placement for Math
• Students who place via Accuplacer are given guidance and the agency to self-place one level higher than the test places them.
Expanded use of writing sample for English Placement
PreFall math updated to allow direct placement into next level of math
Offered first co-requisite math course - 085&107 (Math in Society pathway) |
| 2018 | Expanded High School transcript placement for English to allow for completion of 11th grade English
Shorted Pre-College English pathway by having students complete pre-college and college English in one quarter.
Expanded co-req math courses to include 095&141 (STEM pathway); plan to expand further in 2019 by offering 085&146 (stats pathway) |

Indicator 1B-2a

Theme: Access

Subtheme: Promoting Pluralism and Social Justice by Expanding Access to College Programs

Goal: Improving Transitions from Adult Basic Education to College Coursework

Indicator: Increase the Percentage of ABE/ESL Students Who Transition to Credit-Bearing College Courses to the SBCTC Average
Indicator 1B-2a: BEdA

Basic Education for Adults (BEdA) courses are designed to help students move into college and/or careers. Basic Ed students who transition into college courses earn double SAI points for one year after their transition. System-wide initiatives and programs such as High School 21+, contextualized curriculum, and On-Ramps to IBEST are designed to increase transitions into college-level coursework. Tracking the percentage of students who transition from Basic Ed into college has been historically difficult but increasingly important.
Indicator 1B-2a Strategies

Actions completed in 2016-17 Restructured staffing in BEdA to include a full-time student advisor to assist students with career and college planning and transitions.

• Worked with CC Foundation to establish a BEdA Transitions Scholarship.

• Worked with pre-college math faculty to cluster Pre-College Math and Math Fundamentals classes so that students can start their math pathway/pre-reqs while still in BEdA.

• Collaborated with BEdA deans/directors statewide to pressure SBCTC to include transitions to other colleges in their calculations; SBCTC agreed and will start to include those transitions in their data.

Cascadia College Board Meeting 02-20-19
Subject: Enrollment Report/Update and DIA Message to Employees

Background
Cascadia’s enrollment patterns are changing, this presentation is intended to provide the Board with an understanding of the College's historic enrollment patterns, how they are changing and the degree to which the College can influence them.

Enrollment changes have financial implications which the campus community needs to respond to.

Two presentations are attached, the first relates to enrollment, the other is a presentation President Murray gave to all employees on 1-31-19 at the all-college Day of Inquiry and Assembly (DIA).

President Murray, Terence Hsiao and Dr. Kerry Levett will be available to answer any questions the Board may have on this item.

Subject: International Program Markets

Background

In 2015-16, more than 60% of ELP enrollments were made up of Chinese students. The number of Chinese students enrolling has rapidly declined over the last few years, diminishing our numbers in the English program. While our international college enrollments have remained relatively stable, we will now begin to see them drop as a result of the dip in our ELP program. Historically, approximately 60% of students enrolled in ELP matriculate into our college program.

Yukari Zednick, Director of International Programs, will give the board an overview of the countries in which Cascadia is currently recruiting and/or planning to recruit. She will show how we are evaluating both our current, new, and prospective markets to determine which markets make sense for Cascadia to focus on.
Subject: Capital Projects Update

Background

The purpose of the attached PowerPoint presentation is to update the Board on the status and issues associated with the College’s current major capital projects, the Corporation Yard, the West Garage and the new STEM building.

Terence Hsiao, VP of Administrative Services will be available to answer any questions the Board may have on this item.

Report to the Board of Trustees

Cascadia College

Meeting Date: February 2019

Cascadia Student Government has continued to stay busy as we are getting towards the middle of the quarter.

On Monday afternoons our Director of Sustainability and Director of Pluralism and Inclusion are tabling at different locations on campus to promote resources available to students from mental health, to taxes and everything in between.

On February 6th our Activities Board (in collaboration with CEB) put on casino night for our students in the ARC and did a fantastic job planning and executing the event. Unfortunately, our Director of PR and Technology has resigned from student government as of February 2nd.

On February 13th our Director of Government Relations joined President Murray in Olympia on advocating for the college and our priorities.

On February 14th our Vice President tabled to show love for Valentine’s Day as well as promote safe sexual practices.

We are selecting our S&A budget committee students and are setting their meeting dates.

The Future Leaders Program will be launched and applications are open until February 25th.

Thank you,

Seth Smith, CSG President
